Roosevelt, Experts Declare

No More Increases Will Be Made For '40

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 — The nation's millions of income taxpayers, both big corporations and plain citizens, were assured by President Roosevelt and congress-sional finance experts today that they need expect no further increase in their tax bills for 1940.
While sharp increases, designed to help meet defense-related expenditures, appear almost certain for the taxes on 1941 incomes, Chairman Harrison (D) of Mississippi of the senate finance committee announced that further retroactive taxes on this year's income are out of the picture.

This was decided, Harrison said,
at a supper conference which the President held last night with treasury officials and leaders of interested congressional committees.

Increases To Be Fixed Later
It means that the 24 percent corporation income tax rate and the graduated levy on individual incomes starting at 4.4 percent will stand. First installments on 1940 income taxes will fall due next March 15.

Harrison said that, early in January, congressional committees
will begin work on legislation affecting 1942 incomes. It is generally believed that many tax rates will go up when that measure is enacted.

The size of the increases probably will not be determined finally until after the March 15 returns are in. Chairman Doughton (D) of North Carolina of the house ways and means committee and another of the presidential conferees said present estimates of the revenue to be produced then are "encouraging."

Besides Harrison and Doughton,
the three-and-a-half-hour conference was attended by Sen. George (D)
of Georgia of the finance committee and Rep. Cooper (D) of Tennessee of the ways and means committee; Secretary of the Treasury
Morgenthau; Assistant Secretary
John L. Sullivan; and Harold D.
Smith, budget director.

Harrison said that Smith's presentation of prospective spending was "very much a part" of the discussion, which, he said, also covered the probability of having to increase the present $49,000,000,000
limit on the federal debt.

But, Harrison added, the discussions were "general" and no decisions were reached other than that regarding 1940 income.

This income was subjected to retroactive taxation in both the first and second revenue acts passed by congress this year. The initial legislation imposed a 10 percent defense "super-tax"; the second increased corporation income taxes and imposed an excess profits levy designed to prevent the creation of "war millionaires."

Goal Of $10,000,000,000 Seen Harrison mentioned the other thing specifically. He said that the congressional committees will give consideration to the overlapping of federal and state taxes.

There is talk, meanwhile, of a goal of $10,000,000,000 in revenues
for the next fiscal year—about $3-000,000,000 more than the most liberal estimate of the amount likely to be raised during the current year. Against this, expenditures are expected to exceed $13,000,000-000 this year and may be even higher in 1941.

HORN SWITCH CUTOFF
HALTED BY WEATHER

Bad weather has brought work on the Horn switch project to a virtual standstill and completion of the roadway today is as far away as it was a week ago.

Bricklaying was to start last Tuesday, but the bricks still were stacked alongside the roadway Friday afternoon and the right-of-way was deserted of workmen.

Last week, engineers expected to have the work completed and ready for traffic by the weekend.

The Bowers and Kelly Co. of Canton will be in charge of the bricklaying, which "can be completed in four or five days with good weather," engineers said.

Meanwhile, the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. has installed traffic flasher signals at Jefferson st.
where its Horn switch tracks
cross the highway.

Cars Crash, Drivers Unhurt

MIDLAND, Nov. 30 — Raymond
DeLong of 625 Jackson st., East Liverpool, and Mrs. Dorothy Synder of near Beaver, were uninjured
when their cars crashed on route 68 a mile above here Friday night.

DeLong said he was blinded by lights of a barricade and ran into the obstruction, which threw his car against the Snyder machine.

Death Picks The Holidays

December Fatal Accident Quota Is 3,500 For U. S.; Various Factors For Month's High Total Cited

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
Associated Press Staff Writer
THERE'S a tinsel-decorated town this Christmas season with 3,500 carefree men, women and children in it. They smile now, untouched by tragedy.

Ruddy-faced from the nippy cold but bright-eyed with anticipation of good things to come, they call cheerful greetings to each other as they scurry along on workaday errands. Sudden death is in hiding, just ahead.

At intersections red-clad Santa Claus smile, ring their tinkling bells and slap their arms about their fat stomachs, keeping warm
as they hover close to their money pots. Evergreen streamers, twined with bright red, trail from wires overhead. Christmas decorations
now; but the evergreen has to do with death, too.

Ere Christmas these 3,500 will be dead. The town wiped out.

'Home For Christmas'

Not European, to be ravaged by war, but American to be blighted
by tragedy that stalks streets and highways.

This is, of course, a mythical town. But the people aren't imaginary. They are live, active people walking the streets of bustling cities and towns and riding the nation's highways.

They are scattered in a thousand places, but enough to populate a thriving little county seat.
They have this in common: Before Christmas day they will be the victims of December's fatal traffic accidents.

"That's not a pretty Christmas
picture, but December's not entirely a happy holiday month, because death takes no holiday," says W. G. Johnson, chief statistician for the National Safety Council, who has analyzed Decem-ber's traffic deaths.

"The Christmas month is the outstanding candidate for doubtful honors as the worst traffic death month of the year. Perhaps it is a discordant note to mention
a gruesome topic just at the start of the holiday season. But if we

December traffic is more than one and a half times as deadly as that of June, one of the big summer travel months.

"The records of the few states
that we studied analytically disclosed that the actual Christmas season is the most dangerous of all the year."

Johnson said many factors are involved in causing December accidents.

"Accidents on rural highways are uniformly high during the last four months of the year, but city deaths rise sharply to a December peak," he said.

"Night accidents soar in the winter. About 2,500 of the usual 3,500 December deaths occur during darkness.

"Among persons under 24 years old many other months take a larger traffic toll, but for all ages
over 25 the month of December is the most severe. It is the peak month for pedestrian deaths in all age groups 15 years and over.

"It appears that a combination of weather, light conditions and Christmas season travel is the cause of the holiday death toll."

The Japanese are said to have agreed in the protocol to withdraw
their armies from China within
two years after fighting ends.

"With the exception of troops stationed in accordance with the

to Japanese rights and interests
"suffered because of the China incident." Details of such reparations are left to be worked out later.

The Center township rural school district surrounding Lisbon will request a special election on a 3-mill operating levy to replace a similar tax that expires this year, W. E. Roberts, county school superintendent, said today at Lisbon.

Two other rural districts—one now closed because of lack of funds—have scheduled levy votes
Dec. 21. They are West and Knox townships, which both will vote
on 3-mill levies for two years.

Mr. Roberts said the Center district did not consider a levy renewal Nov. 5 because officials believed a tax approved in 1937 did not expire until next year. No funds will be available after December, however, because the budget commission applied the tax a year in advance, Mr. Roberts said.

Mr. Roberts said O. S. Hill, president of the board, will file a petition Monday with the county election board requesting the special election on the levy, which will be in force two years.

Pact Said To 'End' China War; Troops Fight On

By The Associated Press.

NANKING, Nov. 30—Japan and the Nanking government which it endorsed signed a peace pact proclaiming an end to 40
months of war in China and the beginning of an era of military and economic cooperation today
in a ceremony guarded by Japanese machine guns and warplanes.

But the treaty makes it clear that Japan will continue military operations until there is actual peace—not yet in sight as Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chungking forces fight on.

Wang and Japanese Ambassador Gen. Nobuyuki Abe signed the treaty—Wang with a brush and
Gen. Abe with a pen.

Japanese representatives came in cars guarded by blue-jackets
and armed with swivel-mounted machine guns. Several Chinese came in bullet-proof automobiles.

Thus, in the great Nanking administrative hall which the military leader Chiang had built "within the shadow of Purple mountain
where lies the body of Sun Yat-Sen, founder of the Chinese republic," Chiang's Japanese foes recognized
the regime of his political rival, Wang Ching-wei, as China's "national government."

The pact proclaims an end to the bloody, undeclared war which started July 7, 1937, with a volley of shots across Marco Polo bridge near Peking.

The way is left clear, however,
for continued Japanese military action against Chiang's troops still battling for the interior in their 41st month of resistance.

Japanese reports said the nine articles and protocol of the treaty provide principally:

1.—Mutual respect for sovereignty of Japanese and Chinese territories;

2.—Political, economic and cultural cooperation;

3.—Joint defense against Communist and the elimination of Communist elements, saying specifically that "Japan, in order to carry out defense against Communist activities, shall station the required forces in specified areas of Mengchiang and North China
for the necessary duration;"

4.—Specific permission for Japan
to station naval units in China.

5.—Chinese cooperation in giving Japan all necessary facilities
for development of economic resources and promotion of trade with Japan; Japanese financial aid
in rehabilitating Chinese economy.

6.—Japanese renunciation of any further territorial claims in China and restoration of China's former concessions, China allowing freedom of entry and residence to Japanese subjects.

The Japanese are said to have
agreed in the protocol to withdraw
their armies from China within
two years after fighting ends.

"With the exception of troops stationed in accordance with the treaty."

Fascist Forces Are Claimed
Cut Off At Argirocastro

Special To The Review.
ATHENS, Nov. 30—The Greek
high command reported new gains
in the direction of Porto Edda,
southern Albanian port, today,
where some Fascist forces are believed cut off because of Greek operations around the Italian base
at Argirocastro, which the Italians claim they still hold.

A heavily-fortified wooded plateau commanding the road to Ar-girocastro was stormed by the Greeks.

A Greek officer leading the operation, during which he was wounded twice, was said to have described the plateau as "the hardest position we have tackled yet."

Many Machine Gun Nests
"Every tree and bush seemed to be covering machine gun nests,"
he said. "Mortars and hand grenades met our Ezzone mountaineer fighters and during the day were unable to move a foot, so deadly
was the fire of the Italian snipers.

During the night our mountain guns began shelling, setting the pine trees blazing and lighting up the whole plateau."

Greek forces then stormed the position during the darkness and took it after six hours of fierce fighting. Losses are said to have been heavy on both sides.

The Italians are said to be fighting a defensive battle along the whole south and central fronts,
using fresh troops which are heavily armed.

Italians Believed Massing
North of Koritza it is believed that the Italians are massing for a counter-attack. It was stressed here that in the fighting there "so far only Greek cavalry has participated. It is said the main Greek forces in that area have not yet been in action and are intact.

QUINTUPLETS CLAIMED

HAVANA, Nov. 30 — Unconfir-

interior of eastern Cuba 300 miles

quintuplets have been born at an isolated farm in Camaguey province.

The babies, the reports said, are two girls and three boys.

The mother was said previously to have borne several sets of twins
and triplets among 16 other children. The father's name was given as Enrique Garay, a farm laborer.

Additional Bloody Revenges Feared Against Men Who Killed Party Chief

By The Associated Press.
The disinterred bones of Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, founder of the Rumanian Iron Guard who was slain two years ago, were carried in a gold coffin through the streets of Bucharest today in a funeral procession ominous in its solemnity and the absence of King Mihai.

For the young king is reported to have fled from the city as reports spread that the Iron Guard-ists will use this day for further bloody revenges against the men who killed Codreanu in the regime
of the king's father, the abdicated Carol II.

Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini were represented importantly in the funeral procession which was led by Premier Gen. Ion An-tonescu and Vice Premier Horia Sima.

The body of Codreanu was taken five miles through packed streets
to the Iron Guard headquarters
on the city's outskirts for burial.

Steel-helmeted German and Rumanian soldiers with bayonets
fixed were among the thousands marching in a vast pageant of mourning.

BRITISH REPULSE
RAID ON LONDON

Strong Attack Turned Back
By Capital's Defenses

By The Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 30 — The Nazi
air force made one of its strongest drives in recent weeks to bomb London today, but only a few of the hundred or more planes which roared towards the capital got past
the outer ground defenses and the R. A. F.

There were two daylight raids by mid-afternoon, following a night attack in which the Germans used upwards of 300 bombers against London and the home counties,
while hundreds of others struck at the Midlands and the Mersey river area.

Come In Waves Of 30
The first of the daylight raiders came over the Thames estuary in waves of 30 planes. Anti-aircraft guns barked and fast Hurricane and Spitfire fighters zoomed to the attack, quickly breaking up the Nazi formations and forcing most of the planes back.

Some bombs were dropped in a London residential district.

One hit a building and sent a small tower crashing on a taxicab
in a main shopping street. Pedestrians dashed to cover.

German planes also attacked a convoy flying barrage balloons.
Persons on shore heard anti-aircraft fire from the ships and bomb explosions and saw high columns of water.

Mystery Beam Used
The bombers roared over one district of the city at the rate of one every 30 seconds and Nazis
said 400 tons of explosives and 36
tons of incendiaries were dropped.
A wide area of the city is reported to have suffered demolished homes
and buildings as rescue workers dug today for victims in the wreckage.

For the second night a mysterious bluish-white light beam stabbed through London's blackout, causing speculation over whether it is a new "mystery" defense weapon.

33 WITNESSES CALLED FOR TRIAL OF KELLEY

Special To The Review.
LISBON, Nov. 30 — Prosecutor
Karl Stouffer said today 33 witnesses, including State Examiner
J. H. Chamberlain, and Wellsville city officials, have been called for the trial Monday of Howard Kelley, former Wellsville mayor.

Kelley was indicted by the September grand jury for an alleged embezzlement of $355 of police court funds while he was in office.
Kelley made restitution shortly after leaving office last January, and the examiner said in his report of the findings that "no criminal intent is seen."

Meanwhile, the grand jury will convene at the same time Monday
to reconsider the indictment against Miss Anna McNeil, former East Liverpool city auditor's clerk accused of a $5,000 embezzlement, whose trial has been continued indefinitely.

28 TO 32 LOST;
100 OTHER MEN
FLEE TO SAFETY

Rescuers' Efforts To Reach Bodies Are Hampered By Rock Falls And Gas

By The Associated Press.
CADIZ, Nov. 30 — At least 28 — perhaps 32 — miners entombled by a devastating explosion in one of Ohio's largest coal pits were given up for dead today.

"There is no question but that all are dead," said John Owens, Ohio district United Mine Workers' president, who charged "this catastrophe could have been prevented if we had adequate inspection and regulation of mines."

Workers in section "12 North" of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal Co.'s huge mine northeast of here were entombed yesterday afternoon by the blast. About 100 other men fled safely.

Attributed To Gas
While Owens and the miners attributed the explosion to gas, company officials said they cannot comment on the cause pending a more thorough investigation. Company spokesmen pointed out, however, that the region is dotted with gas and oil deposits.

Ohio industrial commission officials on the scene said the mine used approved equipment and rock blasting methods.

After one body was found—that of a man who had the best chance to escape — weary rescue crews abandoned frantic emergency ef-orts to reach the blasted chamber.
Aided by mechanical ladders, they began a methodical "cleaning up"
of all debris in their path.

Treacherous rock falls and deadly gas hampered efforts to reach the victims, caught two miles from an exit shaft.

M. Spiecher, mine personnel director, listed 28 missing, including his brother, Pete, and said "four more names may be added" to the total. Pete's broken body was the first to be brought to the surface.

Friends, Relatives Await Word
Anxious friends and relatives,
kept away from the mine shaft,
huddled around small fires nearby
as a heavy snow blanketed the hills.

"It's anybody's guess when we can get to them," said F. R. Sinclair, superintendent of the Ohio
and Pennsylvania Coal Co. "Company's mine northeast of here in a remote and hilly bituminous field.

As the hours passed, officials indicated they hold little hope of finding the men alive in the bitter cold 446 feet underground. "It looks very dark," admitted Nelson Hovey, assistant state industrial relations director.

Others of the 130 at work at the time of the explosion in section
"12 North" were given up for dead.

COURT FORFEITS BOND FOR SWINDLING CASE Special To The Review. LISBON, Nov. 30—Two criminal cases were disposed of in court here Friday as Judge W. F. Jones ordered a $2,500 property bond forfeited on the recommendation of Prosecutor Karl T. Stouffer, in the case of Joseph Carland, alias Lazarus Ivanovits of Struthers.

Carland was indicted last April, charged with larceny in connection with the swindling of Mrs. Elizabeth Slavik of near Unity, in which $1,800 was obtained. Bondsman were Patsy Cavelli and Mary Carbisello of Wellsville, and Rocco Romeo of Lisbon. Carland's case twice was assigned for trial, but he failed to appear.

The other case was that of Delmar Hill of near Rogers, who was freed of a breaking and entering charge when Prosecutor Stouffer nolledd the indictment. He was jointly indicted with George Blair for the robbery of a Rogers cafe. Blair was placed on probation.

MINE

"12 North" escaped, officials said. The shaft mine employs about 500. Fall To Find Bodies Repeated slate falls and excessive gas slowed rescue operations. Five workers, wearing oxygen masks, were carried from the mine unconscious shortly after midnight, but were revived and able to walk to their homes.

Mine inspectors then ordered erection of additional brattices—temporary partitions—as protection against the fumes. Original canvas brattices were replaced with wooden planks because of abnormal pressure.

About 5 a. m. rescue crews reached a telephone shanty location where they expected to find four men, but failed to locate anyone. Workers said the bodies may be covered by rock falls.

As rescue operations became increasingly slow, a mechanical loading device was started to clear out the debris.

Following a talk with Marcus Kerr, director of the state bureau of mines who is supervising rescue operations, Hovey said the slate falls also are presenting a grave menace to workers. The leader of one rescue crew reported 15 men barely escaped being crushed under one fall.

Adolph Pacifico, district United Mine Workers' vice president, said the trapped men's "one chance" was in reaching a finished mine room. The superintendent emphasized there was no evidence of fire following the terrific detonation, tentatively attributed by miners to ignited gas. He asserted the workings had been rock dusted thoroughly to prevent explosions and that only "permissible" explosives and machinery were used. H. H. Snider, assistant manager of the firm's Cleveland headquarters, said the Cadiz area is "dotted with oil and gas" but asserted he is unable to advance a cause for the blast.

Second Disaster Of Year The mine disaster is Ohio's second this year. Seventy-two men were killed in the March 16 explosion at the nearby Willow Grove mine.

The company blacksmith shop is the hub of rescue operations. Here the grimy, weary rescue crews obtain oxygen from large tanks for the small containers strapped to their backs to keep them alive in the gas-filled depths. The crews, all picked men, work in units of 15 or 20. For two hours they tear at the rock in the passages and then return to the surface to remove their masks and sweat-soaked gear while a fresh crew takes over. It's back-breaking work but they know the men they're trying to reach would do the same for them, a veteran miner observed.

Repeated changing of lamps by rescue workers made it virtually impossible to determine the number of miners missing through the customary lamp room check, officials asserted.

First reports of the blast at 2:15 yesterday was telephoned to the surface by William Campbell, who nearly was blown off his electrical-operated mine car by the concussion

A report was made promptly to George A. Strain, state industrial relations director at Columbus, and he left for the mine immediately, accompanied by Hovey.

E. H. Nelms, vice president, was in charge of operations for the company.

Here's List Of Men Who Perished In Blast

By The Associated Press. CADIZ, Nov. 30—Twenty-eight miners were listed officially today as missing in the blast - rocked depths of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal Co. Nelms mine near here.

Speicher, mine personnel director, who issued the list said the total may reach 32. His list contains these names:

STOCK UPSWING
LED BY STEELS

Rallying Difficulties Remain
On Big Board, However

By VICTOR EUBANK
Associated Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Rallying difficulties continued in today's stock market although selected issues managed to climb back on the rising van.

Steels led an early forward
swing when plus marks of fractions to a point or so were distributed fairly well. But they tapered off but, at the close, prices for favorites were at or near the best.

Volume was relatively small
throughout the brief proceedings.
Transfers were around 350,000 shares.

Brokers suggested some short covering at the start, combined with scattered investment purchases, was partly responsible for the rising of bids. While business and industrial developments remained encouraging, bullish forces
still had to contend with year-end tax selling and persistent fears that everything may not be going so well for the British in the war.

Among stocks drawing support
were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Republic Steel,
Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Sears
Roebuck, Woolworth, American Telephone, du Pont, Westinghouse, Anaconda, International Paper common and preferred, U. S.
Rubber, Union Carbide and Great Northern.

Oils, aircraft and utilities, for the most part, were unable to make much progress. Laggards included Standard Oil of N. J., Hoising, Phelps Dodge and North American.

CRASH INJURIES
CLAIM VETERAN

Former Chester Resident,
C. G. McKinney, Is Victim

Charles G. McKinney, 45, World war veteran and a former Chester mill worker, died Friday morning
in the Methodist hospital at Gary, Ind., from injuries in an automobile accident Monday.

Details of the tragedy were not immediately available. He was employed in the Gary mills.

The body will arrive in Chester tonight and will be taken to the home of his brother, George Mc-Kinney, on Lytton st., where funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. Rev. John P. Kindsvatter, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, of East Liverpool, and Rev.
T. Milton Gladden, pastor of the Chester Methodist church, will officiate. Burial will be in Riverview cemetery.

Mr. McKinney was born Feb. 20, 1895, in Pittsburgh, and came to Chester when a boy with his parents. He was employed in the Chester plant of the American Sheet
and Tin Plate Co. for many years, leaving about eight years ago to accept employment in Gary.

He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and St. John's church. While in Chester he was a member of the old Ceramic
City band of East Liverpool.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Emma Ulbricht McKinney of Gary; his mother, Mrs. Adda McKinney of Chester; a sister, Mrs. Mary Brant,
also of Chester, and four brothers,
George McKinney and Ray McKinney of Chester and Walter McKinney and Wade McKinney of Scio.

Friends may call Sunday afternoon or night at the George Mc-Kinney home.

TRUSTEE FOR CENTER
TOWNSHIP DIES AT 62

Homer C. Wright Dies After Operation On Tuesday

Special To The Review.
LISBON, Nov. 30.—Homer C.
Wright, trustee of Center township
for the last five years, died suddenly at 6:30 a. m. today in Salem
City hospital after a relapse following an operation last Tuesday.
Mr. Wright seemed recovering.
He was 62. A blood clot was blamed.

Mr. Wright's home was south of Lisbon on what is known as the old Steubenville road. He resided in the vicinity for 26 years. He was born April 3, 1878, in Signal, Elkrun township, the son of Robert
P. Wright and Mary Wilson
Wright.

He was a farmer for many years
and once was employed as a potter in the R. Thomas and Sons Co. here. He was a member of the Lisbon United Presbyterian church and the Lisbon Grange.
He is survived by his widow,
brothers, Bert Wright of Youngstown, John Wright of Sacramento and Wesley Wright of Los Angeles; a sister, Mrs. Jennie Morland of Rogers, and a stepson, Martin Scalley of Canton.

Services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 in the Ellis funeral home followed by interment in Lisbon cemetery. Rev. J. M.
Cameron of the U. P. church will officiate.

Friends may call Sunday night
at the Ellis home between 7 and 9.

Mrs. Charles Doland

Mrs. Elizabeth Ellen Doland, wife of Charles E. Doland, died Friday at 12:45 p. m. in her home on Oakwood ave., Pleasant Heights, following a long illness. She was 64.

Mrs. Doland was born in Athens county, a daughter of Ervin Swift and Mary Randolph Swift, and resided in East Liverpool for about 40 years. She was a member of the First Church of Christ and the Bethany Bible class.

Besides her husband she leaves
three sons, Thomas Doland, Charles

Doland and Clyde Doland, all of East Liverpool; a daughter, Mrs.
Ethel Huffman of East Liverpool;
two sisters, Mrs. Eliza McAfee of Sioux City, Ia., and Mrs. Alice Koerber of East Liverpool; three brothers, Shelton Swift of East Liverpool, Sherry Swift of Newell and Ernie Swift of Athens, and five grandchildren.

Services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. in the Martin funeral home
with Rev. D. Park Chapman, pastor of the First Church of Christ, officiating. Burial will be in the Colum-biana County Memorial park.

Friends may call Sunday afternoon or night at the home.

Mrs. Mary B. Caughey

Mrs. Mary Boggs Caughey, 77, formerly of near Ohioville, died Friday afternoon in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Homer Wagner, at Ambridge, following a five-day illness.

ARMY OFFICER KILLED
IN MEXICAN RED RAID

55 Persons Arrested After Assassination Plot Rumor

By The Associated Press.
MEXICO, D. F., Nov. 30.—Maj.
Guillermo Garcia Gallegos was killed last night when he and an army detail raided Communist offices to investigate what police headquarters declared today were rumors of a plot to assassinate President-elect Manuel Avila Camacho.

Avila Camacho is to be inaugurated tomorrow.
Fifty-five persons were arrested
at the Communist headquarters,
among them Ester Chapa, who holds a prominent position in the Mexican department of interior.
Police declared that a volley was fired from the offices the moment Garcia Gallegos and his detail attempted to enter. While the major lay critically wounded, his aids called police, who took the alleged arms cache and the prisoners to jail.

The incident created a sensation
in the capital, since Communist headquarters is near the national palace. Avila Camacho declared recently Communist will have no
part in his administration.

Earlier last night, a crowd assembled in downtown streets and stoned a statue of George Washington.

WILLKIE BACKS AID FOR BRITISH

Declares U. S. Should Help Empire As Well As Self

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Wendell L. Willkie believes it is just as necessary for America to aid Britain as to arm itself.

In his second speech since, as Republican presidential candidate,
he was defeated in the November election, Willkie told the national interfraternity conference last night:

"We must continue at an ever-increasing rate to help the fighting men of Britain to preserve that rim of freedom which gradually is shrinking and which, if we permit it to continue to shrink,
will shrink to the edges of our own shores.

Indorse 'Free Discussion'

"I believe it is as necessary for America to give that aid to Britain as to build armaments for itself."

In his first post-election speech, Willkie supported a "loyal opposition" as a fundamental part of democracy. Last night, he said the only hope for survival of democracy in the United States lies in continuation of "honest, free discussion" of the grave issues facing the nation.

On this score, he cited much
"personal abuse and vilification"
uttered by both Republicans and Democrats in the election campaign and commented that such remarks could result only in the "destruction" of some of the country's ablest and most-needed men.
"I am most dispassionate about public discussion in America," he asserted. "The democratic process rests upon discussion. There is no other method by which it can function."

Gives Toast To President

Willkie said he "firmly and completely is convinced" that the tactics of partisans "on both sides of the fence" in the recent campaign did not change any votes.
The only result, he said, was to "lower the stature in the estimation of American people" of those persons in public and private life
who engaged in such tactics.

Willkie concluded his remarks with a toast to "the health and happiness of the President of the United States." The 3,600 men and women present joined him with cheers and applause.

BLAZE CAUSES $1,500
DAMAGE TO DWELLING

Fire believed caused by a defective chimney Friday afternoon resulted in damage estimated at more than $1,500 to the home of Miss Anna Laura Densmore at 943 Fairview st.

Miss Densmore discovered the fire when she opened a closet door adjoining the chimney in which there was a grate fire. When the fire department arrived the fire had eaten up through the walls into the roof.

The blaze apparently was extinguished and the firemen returned to the central station. A few minutes later they were called back to the house when the blaze appeared again. Three rooms in the house were damaged badly.

The house is occupied by Miss Densmore and her brother Robert Densmore. The loss is covered by insurance, Miss Densmore said.

Democracy Can Be Dynamic Too

REGENERATION of democratic principles in a world cringing under brute force can occur on one condition. A more dynamic force than that embodied in the dictatorial states must be developed.

Germany, Italy, Russia, Japan and their satellites feared to attack because they believed they were stronger than their victims. Wherever they have succeeded they have proved they were right.

Until the collapse of France, Great Britain did not even realize the gravity of its position. Beginning then—almost too late—the British tried to make up the ground they had lost.

Americans were jarred out of their complacency by what happened in the spring. But during the summer and fall they found it comfortable to slip back into complacency again. After all, Britain still stood.

More recent evidence that things are worse with the British than wishful thinkers hoped they would be at this stage of the war is shaking American complacency again. "It is later than you think!" was the warning cry of a few. Now it is becoming the conviction of a great many.

This is the test of America's ability to generate the dynamic force that can save it—and Great Britain in the bargain. British will and power to resist the totalitarian onslaught must be matched, then doubled and redoubled.

America's proper destiny, its only conceivable destiny, is to become strong enough to protect its principles wherever and however they may be attacked. It must do the best it can, knowing that its best will be good enough.

Nothing would be more dangerous now than a repetition of the dead center stagnation that paralyzed Britain and France between the conquest of Poland and the invasion of the Low Countries. That was a psychological as well as a physical error; it was easier to think and to act as though everything possible were being done than to face the hard truth that seemingly impossible things were going to have to be done, too. The dynamism of the totalitarian bloc leaves no margin of safety for its victims.

Perhaps Britain's dark days and the fact they are frightening Americans as well as Britons will prove a blessing in disguise. Perhaps they will put up a bar to complacent thought and action in the nation whose productive capacity is the sole means of salvaging democracy from tyranny. Perhaps they will keep the United States from struggling helplessly against its own potential power on dead center. Perhaps they will strike the spark that will release the tremendous energy of the American way of life. It is later than we think—but not too late.

Hard-Headed Sentiment

ONE possible danger of Great Britain's new policy of telling Americans the naked truth about its battle for survival is a too violent reaction. It is evident already in questions about Britain's chances of winning the war. American sentiment for the British is hard-headed; there is no inclination to share ships, planes and other equipment with a nation which may have to forfeit them to an already well-armed Germany.

Violent reaction, in this case, seems to be the result of too much hopefulness. Americans have been so confident that Great Britain ultimately would defeat Germany that suggestions of honest doubt plus British inability to stop devastating bombing raids are likely to produce the opposite extreme of skepticism. It would be better to lead them up to frightening reality gradually, the way horses used to be introduced to automobiles.

The objective truth seems to be that Great Britain has a fair chance of winning the war if the United States supplies as much equipment as the British believe this country is capable of supplying. That entails a far greater war effort than Americans now have in contemplation; it likewise holds more serious risk of involvement and sacrifice than it has been convenient so far to think about. Britain's immediate problem is how to set forth the gravity of the problem faced without at the same time obscuring the hope of victory which is the prime condition for United States cooperation with Great Britain's desperate defense.

Man's Latent Resources

FIRE eaters, sword swallowers, glass chasers, assorted contortionists and torture fanatics have made a living out of the latent resources of mankind for years. It doesn't astonish them to learn that Londoners are learning to sleep through the roar of an all-night bombing. T. Harrison reports in the London Spectator that from Sept. 12 to Sept. 22 the percentage of persons saying they hadn't slept a wink dropped from 31 to 9. While many Londoners probably won't be able to survive unless they can sleep longer and more comfortably than Hitlerism is prescribing for them, the fact of scientific importance is that they are actually getting accustomed to the most heinous inhumanity man ever devised for his fellowmen. It can be compared only with the roar of elevated trains in New York city, the uh-uh-uh-uh-uh of air hammers and riveting machines on construction jobs, the banging of garbage cans at 4 a. m., and the neighborly radio caterwauling for the swing cats at midnight—all of which have been surmounted by man and his latent resources for absorbing punishment, too. What a mankind!

The Wilkies don't weep.—Mrs. Wendell Wilkie on receiving the election returns.

On The Record

We Must Not Allow British Empire To Lose War; Any Nazi-English Peace Would Mean Catastrophe

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

LUDWELL DENNY, writing a series of articles in the Scripps Howard newspapers, is suggesting that there is an underground movement for a "peace of negotiation"

to settle the war in Europe and that Mr. Churchill, backed up by the Roosevelt administration, is standing in the way. "But conditions may change."

The peace offensive, according to Mr. Denny, emanates from Berlin.

Miss Thompson says Hitler wants to hold the continent of Europe and is prepared, if the war be stopped, to take Great Britain into junior partnership.

Articles like these, plus reports from England of serious damage from bombs and serious shipping losses, undoubtedly awaken in this country a hope that maybe the war can be stopped and things restored in a half-way tolerable manner.

Influential groups in the American business world unquestionably are counting on a possible defeat of Britain by spring. These, and others, shown stubborn resistance to any radical increase of aid from us to Britain. Col. Lindbergh is spokesman for a group which is counting positively on the collapse of Britain at no distant date, and a "New Order in Europe" with which we, then, must cooperate.

Indeed, in his Chicago speech last summer Col. Lindbergh recommended that once Hitler's regime is established it will be our duty to make a treaty with it, thus abandoning one of our most sacred principles of "no entangling alliance." We must make no alliance now with Britain; we must prepare to make one with the new order under Hitler.

IT is much better to examine these ideas rationally than to denounce them out of hand. But the first thing that must be made clear about them is that they originate in Berlin and that they are part and parcel of a diplomatic offensive perfected by Hitler long ago and waged by him with extraordinary success from 1936 to 1939.

They are part of his technique of achieving "bloodless victory." From the very beginning, he held forth the repeated hope that just one more gain would satisfy the third reich and that war would occur only because of the lack of reason on the part of his opponents. And, in this, he has been and still is justified: The whole world can have one sort of peace tomorrow, if it is prepared to live on Hitler's terms.

It will not, of course, have real peace. It will have the indefinite continuation of a reign of terror, in which, in the most arbitrary way, whole populations are moved from their homes and recolonized; racial groups are exterminated; hierarchical structure of Germany on top and lesser races beneath; all existing forms of culture and of law are obliterated; and the so-called German revolution is substituted for the war itself.

'Technology On The Farm'

By JACK STINNETT

FOR anyone who cares two whoops what is happening to United States farms and farmers, a fascinating piece of government literature recently rolled off the federal presses.

It is called by the unappetizing title of "Technology on the Farm" but it is just about as full a survey of farm improvements and lack of improvements as the numerous bureaus of the department of agriculture could put together.

City folk and I'm just like the next fellow who doesn't know a harrow from a combine have fallen into the habit of saying that the farmer of today, with his electric light, his radio, his telephone, the family jalopy, washing machines, hot and cold running water, indoor plumbing and a generous check from the government every year is sitting pretty on top of the haystack.

Now this is like a lot of statements that somebody who doesn't know what he's talking about picks up and passes along to other know-nothings until it gets to be sort of universal. It's about half truth and half breeze. At least that's the conclusion you'll have to come to if the agriculture department survey on farm technology is all facts.

THE farmer has come a long way from the ox-drawn wooden plow and harvesting sickle and flail, but what got me in this department report is how many of these "modern farm conveniences and luxuries" seem to be potentialities rather than realities so far as the modern farm home is concerned.

When the last general survey of farm income was made in 1935-36 (and no more accurate figure will be available until the census bureau on farm population figures) about one-fourth of the farm families received direct relief or had incomes under $500; a little fewer than a fourth had incomes of $1,500 or more; and the remainder, slightly more than a half, had incomes from $500 to $1,500.

With an average of 4.5 persons to the family (one more than average in cities of more than 100,000), you can start your budgeting. Take out for stuff you have to have

There is not the slightest doubt that Hitler would more than welcome at this moment, a negotiated peace, with Britain taken into junior partnership. Junior partnership with Nazi Germany is the status at present enjoyed by Italy. Junior partnership means collaboration in carrying out further the world program designed in Berlin.

THERE is no profound difference between the position of Mussolini's Italy and that of conquered France. Italy does not have German troops in occupation any more of her soil, but she would have them tomorrow if she did not "behave". Italy is the caboose of a streamlined train hurtling through the world, and she cannot uncouple herself if she will. Her military and economic position is so weak in contrast to that of Germany that she is a prisoner, not a partner, of her alliance. And Great Britain would be in the same position.

The negotiated "peace" proposed by Germany would deprive the United States of the only friend and ally we have in the world. The Churchill government would fall. Hitler would not make peace with Churchill, even if Churchill would. Not once in his whole lifetime has Hitler carried on a campaign against a personality with whom he hoped to cooperate. When he wanted to subjugate Czechoslovakia he turned the press and radio loose on the man he first wanted to eliminate: Benes.

Before that, he had done the same thing with Schuschnigg. It is significant that never, not once, did he, or has he, personally attacked Stalin. But over and over again he has attacked Churchill and Roosevelt. He wants the elimination of these two men and the policies they represent. The resignation of Churchill would be as essential to peace negotiations as was the resignation of the men above named. Churchill would have to be followed by a pro-Nazi government.

A PRO-NAZI government in England, entering into a "junior partnership" with the third reich would not make peace in the world. It would further pursue the war. And the moment such a "peace" were settled the United States of America would be in the most hideous danger imaginable.

For that moment would be the one in which Japan would enter as actively into the Axis partnership as Italy entered it with the defeat of France.

If the defeatist attitude in the United States is, at this moment, serious enough, what would it be with Britain in "partnership" with the Axis? Then, indeed, the careful preparations made in the United States for years by the Fascist powers would bear fruit!

Then we would hear from our Bundists and all their allies. And the United States had better remember that Hitler's own "solution" for the United States is, that at the right moment, we should tear ourselves to pieces and out of history in an internal revolution!

The only possible hope for the United States to avoid the worst catastrophe in the history of the world is to keep Hitler's terms.

Brazil To Develop Amazon

Conquest Of Malaria Declared Biggest Task Facing Vargas

RIO DE JANEIRO — Sanitation, colonization and increase in production—these are the three major elements in President Getulio Vargas' scheme to remake the Amazon valley.

Back from an airplane tour which took him far into the jungle country, the little president sees the Amazon district as a region of "immense potential wealth" of tremendous importance if Brazil is to go ahead economically.

He has called a conference of Amazon nations—Venezuela, Colombia, Peru, Ecuador, Bolivia and Brazil—to consider their common interests. He has invited the United States to attend.

By development of the Amazon basin and co-operation of the Amazon countries, he hopes "we will increase our reserves for defense and our capacity to resist any attempt at absorption."

Vargas does not say what nation or nations might make such an attempt but it is clear that he has his eye on the European and Far Eastern struggles.

The story of the Amazon is a story of rubber. Back in 1910, when the United States manufactured only 200,000 automobiles, Brazil produced practically all of the world's rubber—62,000 of the 70,000 tons.

BUT Brazilian rubber was wild rubber, gathered by natives in old-fashioned ways. The British had found out that rubber could be raised economically in the Dutch East Indies and the Malay Peninsula.

By 1914, cultivated rubber production exceeded that of wild rubber. By 1920, cultivated rubber production was 320,000 tons, and wild production 40,000. The United States consumed 235,000 tons.

In 1917 the picture—a gloomy one for Brazil—was this: Cultivated rubber, 1,107,062 tons; Brazilian rubber, 16,286 tons. Rubber had been worth $3 a pound in 1910—real "black gold." But when production could more than take care of necessities, prices fell away off.

President Vargas had a look at Henry Ford's plantation near the Amazon during his trip, and apparently was convinced that Brazilian rubber could make a comeback. Already, Vargas says, American industrialists have appeared who are interested in putting capital and technical experience into Brazilian rubber.

Ford has had one setback in his experiments; he had to move his main plantation when his first locale proved unsuitable. So far his output has been unimportant, but within a year or two the Ford people hope to begin serious production.

Of course, Ford's output will not take care of the United States' needs, and the United States is interested vitally in having a source of rubber in this hemisphere.

THE Amazon country also exports nuts, including the famous Brazil nut; some woods, the skins of animals such as crocodiles and some furs.

A major task in development of this district is the conquest of malaria. The germ-carrying mosquito breeds in the swampy lands of the region although as President Vargas points out, much of the territory is free of malaria. The Brazilian authorities and the Rockefeller Foundation have done a great work in eradicating malaria from all the important coastal centers, but their fight in the interior is not yet completed.

To attract colonists from other parts of Brazil, Vargas holds out the offer of free land, agricultural implements and technical assistance, plus free schools and training for their children.

He cites the number of large families as a proof that the region in general is healthful despite common opinion to the contrary.

Vargas doesn't believe he can accomplish his big task in a couple of years in that vast area of jungle and swamp, with only a tiny population and virtually no communications except by airplane and slow river boats. But he thinks—and so do the Brazilian people—that if he can do it eventually, he will have pulled Brazil a long way ahead.

Together Again

From The New York Sun
AMONG the new senators who will be sworn in at Washington in January there are two who will not be strangers to each other.

A little more than 30 years ago they were classmates, roommates and fraternity brothers at Bowdoin college, in Maine. They lived with each other for scholastic honors. Both won a place in the commencement program. Both studied law at Harvard. Then their paths separated. One stayed in his native state of Maine and entered law practice there. He served successively in the house and senate of the Maine legislature, in the governor's office and in the house of representatives. The other entered the practice of law in Cleveland, O.; his political experience began with service in the Ohio house of representatives and went on through three terms as mayor of Cleveland.

In 1937 the two returned to the Bowdoin campus, there to see their sons graduate. The sons were classmates, roommates, fraternity brothers. History repeated itself even in the matter of the commencement program; the sons had parts just as their fathers had before them.

No, it will not be necessary to introduce Sen. Harold H. Burton of Ohio to Sen. Ralph O. Brewster of Maine. After January they will be roommates again, their new room the senate chamber.

Driver, Know Thyself

INTERNATIONAL Association of Chiefs of Police is in a position to settle some moot points about the habits of automobile drivers. According to a survey in Connecticut by Yale university Institute of Human Relations, these are the right answers to some common questions:

Drivers with passengers to whom they are not related drive faster than drivers with passengers related to them;

Non-owners, especially younger persons, drive slightly faster than owners;

Newer vehicles are driven more miles each year and are involved in more accidents than older cars;

Drivers going faster than 50 miles an hour are involved in more accidents and traffic violations than drivers traveling 35 to 45 miles an hour;

Drivers on long trips travel faster than drivers on short trips;

Men between 30 and 40 years of age travel more miles each year than older or younger drivers.

Men drive faster than women.

It's A Problem

But At This Late Date It's Not Our Intention To Wrinkle A Brow Over Wendell L. Wilkie's Future

By DAMON RUNYON

FISHERMEN on Hobe Sound, down Florida way, report their lines clogged with flotsam and jetsam these days, probably offers to Wendell Wilkie to take a piece of some business or engage in numerous other activities, offers which he absently chucked into the surf as he paced the sands beside the sad sea waves cogitating the problem of his political future.

If his future did not involve politics, it would be no problem at all. Mr. Wilkie could just slip back into the practice of law, which is his profession, or get a job running another big outfit like Commonwealth. But his kind of law practice almost inevitably at times would be in the interest of corporations and the job necessarily would be in the same interest, and that is no good politically. It is our opinion that it will be many a year before Mr. Wilkie again thinks in anything but political terms.

We think the price is 1 to 1000 that he will continue to seek the presidency, bar some unexpected happenstance. He does not impress us as the type that is daunted by one failure. On the contrary, we suspect he is the kind that burns inwardly when he misses, though he may turn a smiling face to the world. All tough fighters are that way and no one will deny that Mr. Wilkie is a tough 'un. He never will be satisfied until he has had at least one more bust at the presidency and as his opportunity is four years away he has to think up ways and means to keep himself alive, politically.

HE is going to find it a tough task, because political parties are reluctant to nominate defeated candidates, as Herbert Hoover and Al Smith have found out. Besides, quite a number of formidable young fellows will be working industriously to build themselves up to the Republican nomination in 1944. Anyway, who can say what four years will develop in this strange era of world history?

It is said Mr. Wilkie has an idea he would like to make a connection with some prominent education institution from which at intervals he could give off political opinions in writing and on the air. It strikes us that this would tend to relegate him to the role of sage and Mr. Wilkie is too young to be a sage.

Maybe his best bet would be to go out to Rushville, Ind., his campaign seat, and his rural home, and start himself a weekly political publication and combine radio efforts with that. Ordinarily, we would not advise our worst enemy to start a newspaper of any kind in these hazardous times, but when we think of the circulation potentialities of 22,000,000 admirers, we almost are tempted to try to promote Mr. Wilkie himself, before someone else gets to him.

A PUBLICATION of this kind might give Mr. Wilkie more action and more leeway than an educational post. It would be following a precedent established by this country's most historic defeated candidate, William Jennings Bryan. After his first defeat, Bryan edited the Omaha World-Herald, a daily. After his second defeat, he established and edited at Lincoln, Neb., the Commoner, a weekly that attained a wide circulation. After his third defeat he became a sage.

We have six defeated presidential candidates of the major political parties now living, besides Mr. Wilkie. Mr. Hoover became a sage out in Palo Alto after his defeat, but has been interrupting his sageing every four years to be a candidate before the national convention in what you might call pantomime. Al Smith went into the real estate business following his beating, and has sagged quite a little on the side.

Charles E. Hughes got a job with the government and is our chief justice of the United States Supreme court. John W. Davis went back to his law practice. James M. Cox resumed his newspaper, Alf M. Landon turned country gentleman, with a bit of real estate and oil operation to keep the budget balanced. These last four let the sage business run for Hoover and Smith.

But up to this time, our defeated presidential candidates have never really taken on the aspect of a national problem—we hope and trust we do not now have to start worrying about Mr. Wilkie.

Moving A Bed

By Truman Twell
AN OBLIGING breadwinner does not balk when asked to move a double bed. There are only nine pieces in a bed, not counting the casters. Before starting to move the bed the casters should be removed.

Next is the mattress. This calls for the assistance of a helmsman, who will be tactless enough to say "but she handles the mattress by herself many times in the course of a year."

She cannot handle the springs by herself, but it is interesting to note how close she comes to a point of self-sufficiency by being permitted to try. With mattress and springs to one side, the bed itself can be tackled.

The way to tackle a bed is to thumb the sideboards with a barfed underperut a few times, then request the helmsman to step downstairs to get the hammer. While she is absent, a few vigorous boots with the foot will loosen one of the sideboards, which will clatter to the floor.

This is as nothing compared with the clatter of the head and foot of the bed as the other sideboard is booted into the clear. They will fall in opposite directions, unless by chance the casters have been left in, and in that event they will skitter a few feet before crashing into the wall.

By this time the helmsman will be back to see that things are done better when the bed is set up in its new location. She will insist on holding the head of the bed while the sideboards are attached, then the foot. She will arrange the slats and take charge of getting the springs exactly where they should be. She can be depended on to put the headboard on the mattress and hold up the bed while the casters are restored to their proper places.

When she has finished a man can remark in an offhand manner that he has moved a bed from one room to the other, or if his helmsman is listening, that the reason they call them double beds must be because it takes two people to handle them, with an account of what happened, like this one.

This Is Ohio

OHIO has about 1,000,000 acres of waste land mostly wilderness, unoccupied and untamed. Much of it is beautifully timbered, amply watered and readily accessible.

In the unglaciated hill country of the state there are wilds as rugged and uninhabited as any in the west. In historic times some 70 species of mammals were recorded in this area. The development and utilization of the wildlife resources of unglaciated Ohio now is receiving the serious attention of authorities.

Exceptional features of interest to tourists are the natural lake and reservoir district, local stream gorges, areas zoned for state or federal forest lands and numerous sandstone cliffs and caves.

An American Automobile association poll of 5,000 motorists showed principal "pet peeves" to be: (1) road "hogging"; (2) drivers who cut in; (3) careless pedestrians; (4) inadequate direction signs; (5) lack of parking space.

Little boys in La Paz, Lower California, thought nothing of using pearls for marbles before the Spanish explorations. The Spanish thought little of the land until they discovered the playthings.

English Movie Star Gives Yule Tea To Friends In Britain

By HARRISON CARROLL
King Features Syndicate Writer
HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 30.—Merle Oberon's Christmas presents to friends in England this year will include many two-pound packages of tea. The star is sending them via the Atlantic Clipper. Ernst Lubitsch excused her from the set of her new picture to go down to the postoffice and make an affidavit as to the contents of the packages.

As a grin reminder of German aid raids, she was asked to name an alternate receiver for each gift. Just in case.

Whoever started that talk about Barbara Stanwyck trying to get Robert Taylor to give up airplanes must have been wrong. His first solo flight is in the bag. He made it at Palm Springs and it came off perfectly.

The star is tickled to death. Incidentally, he says he still hasn't gotten the bill from the local airport for ploughing through a field of watermelons when he was making a landing with his instructor in the plane.

It certainly is amazing what things are expected of the stars. When Tyrone Power was in Cincinnati, a man stopped him as he was entering a theater. The stranger asked Ty to pose for a few snapshots and the star obliged.

Now he has received three copies of the pictures in the mails and a suggestion that $100 would be just about the right price.

If he lives to be 100, James Stephenson will never forget the night of the preview of "The Letter." ... Not because the picture gave him the first big break of his career but because that was the night when Coventry was bombed.

Stephenson's older brother, Alan, has been organist for eight years at the Coventry cathedral, which was virtually destroyed.

The actor sent desperate messages to England to find out if his brother had survived the raid. But here's the topper.

When they radioed a picture to this country showing King George inspecting the ruins, Stephenson

RADIO FOR FLOOD DUTY OPENED BY ENGINEERS

By The Associated Press.
CINCINNATI, Nov. 30.—Army engineers officially opened their new Ohio river division emergency radio system today.

The network covers Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Huntington, Louisville, and Nashville districts of the division and includes 24 stations, six of 250 watts and 18 of 100-watt output.

Col. E. H. Marks, division engineer, said the system would assure communications throughout the area in time of flood or other emergency.

Fourteen stations of 15-watt output will be in operation in the Muskingum conservancy district.

PIG FARM OPERATORS FIGHT HEALTH RULING

Seek Injunction On Board's Nuisance Abatement

Special To The Review.
LISBON, Nov. 30.—Charles W. Alexander and his wife, Mabel F. Alexander, of New Garden st., Salem, filed an action in the common pleas court here Friday asking an injunction against Dr. Seward Harris, health commissioner, and Dr. Harry Bookwalter Sr., John Elford, Willis Boone, H. O. Stanley, and William B. Moore Jr., as members of the Columbiana county health board.

The injunction is asked against the board's order to abate a nuisance, a pig sty in Salem township, issued as the result of a petition by township trustees, and effective Dec. 1.

The petition sets forth that the plaintiffs are the owners of 442 acres in Salem township, a part of which is fenced for the raising of hogs, from which Mr. Alexander gains a part of his livelihood, feeding the swine on garbage collected on contracts from Salem homes.

Mr. Alexander said the lot is not within 100 feet of any highway, and that the nearest home is that of a tenant on his place, who lives on the opposite side of the highway from the hog lot. The next nearest homes, the petition states, are not within 1,000 feet, and that the order of the board of health is carried out Mr. Alexander will be financially injured.

THOMPSON

THE only possibility of our avoiding war, yes, the only possibility short of complete capitulation to and integration in a world run on the Axis terms and on their terms alone, is in whether we can muster that unity, strength, co-ordination of resources and production of arms of which we would be capable if we were at war.

It depends upon whether we can use "neutrality" wholly for the purpose of serving our own ends. If "neutrality" is going to be allowed to stand in the way of our taking the political, diplomatic, propagandistic, military, and industrial steps necessary to the preservation of the nation, then it would be better abandoned. But it would be far shrewder, wiser and safer not to do so. For it is still quite possible to win the war without entering it.

But it is not possible if public opinion holds back from the steps which are essential, and which we have not yet taken on anything like a sufficiently comprehensive scale. (Copyright, 1940, New York Tribune)

WATERFORD STUDENTS WILL GIVE PLAY DEC. 9

Special To The Review.
NEW WATERFORD, Nov. 30.—A one-act comedy, "Who Gets The Car?", will be presented here Dec. 9 under the supervision of George A. Bretz, county music director.

The cast will include Kenneth Jepson, Peggy Klein, Dorothy Grossen, Ralph Fitzsimmons and Richard Schmidt.

The play will be presented by casts in Sallenville and Fairfield Dec. 2 and Dec. 5, respectively. All three performances will be judged and the best cast chosen after the play here.

MIDLAND SCOUTS PLAN FOR ICE-SKATING RINK

Special To The Review.
MIDLAND, Nov. 30.—Plans for the construction of an ice-skating rink were discussed at the meeting Thursday night of the Midland Boy Scouts in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church.

The rink will be located on the field across from the high school on 10th st. Boy Scouts plan to help in its construction and maintenance. Wyckliff McCracken, of the high school faculty, is the adviser.

'Forget It' Negro Policeman Replies In 'Kicking Incident'

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Stephenson T. Early, President Roosevelt's press secretary, made public today a letter from James M. Sloan, New York Negro policeman, expressing regret for the "incident" in New York Oct. 28 in which Sloan complained he was hurt while trying to prevent Early and reporters from boarding the President's train in Pennsylvania station.

The misunderstanding was not your fault nor was it ours," Sloan wrote under date of Nov. 22. He accepted an apology Early offered Oct. 31 and said he wants to "count the whole thing as an accident that happened void of all malice."

Early said he was making the letter public with Sloan's permission.

The secretary in a formal statement three days after the incident said he was endeavoring to obtain permission for a group of 35 newspapermen and others in the President's party to board the train, but that police unfortunately had instructions to let nobody pass.

He added that there was a great deal of jostling and shoving in the crowd and he was "deeply sorry that a policeman appears to have been hurt" while carrying out instructions. He said he "did not attack or kick any officer."

Coming at the height of President Roosevelt's campaign for re-election, the affair quickly developed political aspects and some Democrats were reported at the time to fear that it might have for them an adverse effect on the Negro vote.

In his letter to Early, Sloan said he purposely had delayed answering the presidential secretary's note "so that any answer of mine might not be seized upon for purely political purposes."

EAST PALESTINE, Nov. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Jack Garrigue and Mrs. Margaret Ashbridge have returned from a visit with relatives in Tucson, Ariz., and California. Enroute home they were involved in a minor auto accident and Mrs. Ashbridge and Mrs. Garrigue were X-rayed at Salem City hospital for any possible internal injuries.

Out Of My Mind

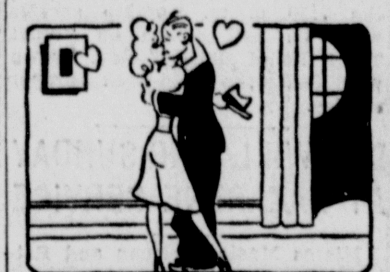

By Katharine Brush

LETTER TO PATRICIA

DEAR Pat:—Your letter tells me very little about yourself—except that you're sixteen, and intelligent, and rather pretty, and more than a little confused About It All. You want to be popular and attractive and charming. You want to do the right thing. How to go about it is the question.

So you write to me, which is flattering since I haven't been sixteen for a couple of million light years. But I remember, or I think I do. And I've learned, or I hope I have. And here is what I'd say to you, or to my little sister if I had one, or to any young lady of sixteen.

I would exhort you, first of all to be cagey. Now there's a word—and more than a word. It's so important that if I were giving you a series of lessons, I would make cageyness the subject of Lessons One, Two, Five and Seven. The point is that it's the thing above all others that extreme youth is likely to lack. If you, at the age of sixteen could get just a glimmering of it, you'd be so far ahead of your field that it wouldn't even be funny. It would be grand, though—for you.

I would tell you that getting tight isn't cagey, and that necking, or pitching woo, or whatever you call it, isn't very cagey either. I would not join the croaking chorus that calls these things immoral, because I don't believe they are. I would merely submit to you that they aren't clever. And I would ask you to look about you, and see for yourself.

If you have as much sense as I think you have, it would dawn on you presently that attractive women, drunk, are not rare—but that there is no such thing as "an attractive drunken woman." The most sophisticated women in the world seldom drink much. They have too much respect for the beauty and femininity and allure that is their stock in trade, to dissipate it in a flood of cocktails. More than two can make a zombie of anybody.

YOU might mull that over—at the local bar and grill.

I mentioned promiscuous necking in the same breath. I would dwell upon its perils—and they wouldn't be the kind inveighed against by your grandmother, either. Chief among them would be the danger of your becoming, in the minds of the young men of your acquaintance, less interesting than you might be if you were less amenable in the matter.

It's trite, but it's true, and I have to say it—the irresistibility of things difficult to attain has always been a fact and always will be. Try looking the importunate swain in the eye and coolly indicating that you see no particular reason for kissing HIM. "Why should I?" ought to be your attitude. (The inquiry can be made better with the eyes and eyebrows and shoulders, than vocally.)

I know of no wiser gesture for you than this; and no surer one. If you (in effect) ask a young man who likes you why you should bother about him, in nine cases out of ten he will be inspired to show you why—to prove to you how eminently worth bothering about he really is. And this pays dividends in invitations and attention. It also brings a number of warnings—and here are those "don'ts" you've been waiting for.

Don't be too expensive to entertain. Orchids and caviar and theater tickets and cover charges are the white man's burden and the young man's despair. Have mercy of your company costs overmuch, it won't be requested as often as you could wish.

WHEN abroad in the land, don't make yourself conspicuous. Nothing is sillier than a shrill little female show-off, unless it is a group of them. Only the sort of man you wouldn't look at will be interested. It's hardly worth it.

Don't insinuate by means of your eyes and the bold, small things you say that you're very wise and very wicked. Any experienced holder will know that you're not, by your insistence. And while we're on this subject, don't hesitate to say that you don't like bawdy jokes (even if you do). Smut is terribly high school, after all. You're not a prude if you won't listen to it—you're just outgrown it.

Ignoring the other girls on a party or anywhere else isn't cagey, either, and you would be urged with all my eloquence not to do it. It isn't necessary to get yourself thoroughly hated by all the women in the world in order to be liked by all the men. If you do, you seem to HAVE to hog the spotlight. You actually seem to fear the competition you affect to ignore. And that's not so good.

Don't be the first girl out of the dressing room and back to the men; and don't be the only girl left at the table when other girls go to the dressing room. This sort of thing gets you nothing at all, and only suggests to the minds of the men that the other girls don't want you with them, that they're avoiding you like a rattlesnake. Men always get things all mixed up. They're gulleible creatures, remember and two and two make four to them, not five and three-eighths.

CATTINESS they can recognize, and they don't think much of it; any cattiness at your expense will work for you, rather than against you, with them. But any idea they get that you're unpopular with the rest of your sex sets them to pondering the whys and wherefores. If you can risk that, all right. But can you?

And as a final dictum, there's this: I would suggest that you cultivate young men IN GENERAL—not only the glamour boys, but or you'll be sorry. If the pleasure all and sundry in your set. I takes a great many men to keep a telephone ringing briskly, and to cut in every two or three yards at dances. It takes more men than there are attractive ones—unfortunately. So be as nice as you can to all kinds. And never hint for invitations. And always be on the receiving end of a phone call. Please.

Is that ALL you ask? No Pat. It isn't even the beginning. I could go on indefinitely. In fact, the more I think about it, the more I think that I might be a little sorry for you, if you WERE my little sister and I DID have to take you in hand. It's evident that I'd lecture your ear off, isn't it?

But maybe—if we get results—you wouldn't mind.

SUNDAY SERVICES IN EAST LIVERPOOL METHODIST CHURCHES

CHURCH TO HOLD ADVENT SERVICE FOR NEXT MONTH

First Presbyterians To Ask 'True Christian Spirit' As Aim Of Series

Services in keeping with the advent season will be featured in the First Presbyterian church during December, Rev. M. Rudolph Miller, the pastor, announced today.

The purpose of these special services will be to impress church members with the "true spirit of Christmas" rather than the false spirit of commercialism.

A new service has been added to the Christmas observance — the celebration of Holy communion at 10 a. m. Christmas day. A Christmas vesper service for children and their friends will be conducted at 4 p. m. on Sunday, Dec. 22.

The advent services will be inaugurated tomorrow at 11 a. m. when Rev. Miller will preach on "The Signs of the Times". The theme will be "The Second Coming of Our Lord".

The sermon subject for Dec. 8 will be "The Bible Within the Bible", a sermon on the book of Romans. The theme will be "The Divine Coming in Holy Scriptures".

On Dec. 15, Rev. Miller will preach on "Must We Have Preachers?" using the theme, "Our Lord's Coming in the Preaching of His Word". The service for Dec. 22 will be a musical program when the men's choir, assisted by guest soloists, will sing the oratorio, "The Messiah", by George Frederick Handel. The theme will be "The Glorious Coming of Our Lord".

Theme of Final Service
"The Coming of Christ to the Conscience of Men" will be the theme for the final Sunday, Dec. 29. The sermon topic will be "Not Peace But a Sword".

Subjects for the Sunday night services during the advent season will include "Shields of Brass", "Withholden Showers", "The Great Question", "Your Bible" and others. "Word Studies of the Apostles" is being given by Rev. Miller at the mid-week prayer services during December.

SOCIETY WILL STAGE SKETCH HERE DEC. 12

'Why The Chimes Rang' To Be St. Stephen's Play

The Kappa Beta Kappa society of St. Stephen's Episcopal church will present a sketch, "Why The Chimes Rang" Thursday, Dec. 12, in the parish hall.

The story will be given in pantomime. Assisting the society will be a group of out-of-town artists who will furnish the music.

The cast follows:
Reader, Ted Fenton; Pedro, Billy Webber; little brother, Keith Hardwin; old lady in snow, Anne Goodwin; acolytes, John Harmon and Edward Anson; rich young ruler, Jack Bowen; sculptor, William Alexander; gold workers, William Fenton and Walter Earl; artist, Lester Jones; author, William Horton; rich woman, Bonnie Milburn; princess, Virginia Davies; attendants, Mary Lou Pollock and Louise Mackey; queen, Mary Thompson; train bearers, Sally Turner and Ralph Turner; attendants, Mary Alice McVey, Marjorie Franklin, Martha Thompson and Esther Thompson, and king, Sayre Graham.

YOUNG PEOPLE SLATE CONFERENCE REPORTS

East Liverpool and Wellsville young people who attended the Christian Youth conference at Columbus last week will make reports of the meeting at the 7:30 p. m. service Sunday in the First Methodist church here.

The speakers will include Miss Mildred L. Bashaw of East Liverpool and Miss Bianca Eckfeld and Robert Lloyd of Wellsville. Rev. William Dwight Heaton will preach on the subject, "The Claims of Christ".

Miss Nell Robinson, superintendent of City hospital, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Young People's society at 6:30 p. m. Another feature will be a duet number by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Burris.

GOSPEL GROUP TO AID WELLSVILLE SERVICE

A gospel team from Baldwin-Wallace college at Berea will assist in the Young People's day observance Sunday morning and night in the First Methodist church of Wellsville.

One member of the team will speak at the morning service. The students will sing Sunday night when Rev. A. E. Beers will preach on "College Youth and Christian Life".

The Young People's society will feature a social and fellowship hour at 5 p. m.

Women's Day Service Arranged Sunday For Societies At Wellsville

The annual Women's day service will be conducted Sunday at 7:30 p. m. in the First Christian church of Wellsville, sponsored by the Women's Missionary society and assisted by the Young Mothers' Missionary society, the Missionary guild and the Youth Mission group.

The speaker will be Rev. T. J. Mattingly, pastor of the Christian church at Coshocton, who spent several years in church work in the Ohio onion marshes. His subject will be "The Grapes of Wrath in Ohio".

The Wellsville congregation will stage a Victory service Sunday at 10:45 a. m. The stewardship committee is expected to announce the completion of the every-member canvass and that the church budget for 1941 has been subscribed. More than 400 pledges from individual members have been received for the coming year.

Rev. R. L. Bolon, the pastor, will preach on "The Book and Its Christ" for the victory celebration.

The advent services will be inaugurated tomorrow at 11 a. m. when Rev. Miller will preach on "The Signs of the Times". The theme will be "The Second Coming of Our Lord".

METHODISTS TO HOLD SCHOOL FOR RELIGION

Northern County Group Will Conduct Six Sessions

COLUMBIANA, Nov. 30—A religious training school for Methodists from northern Columbiana county will be held in the local Methodist church.

Six sessions will be conducted and the school will meet every Monday and Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. for three weeks. The initial session was held last Monday night.

Rev. J. C. Wilson pastor of the Columbiana Methodist church, is teacher of the class on "Guiding Children in Christian Growth". Rev. Virgil C. Jump, pastor of the East Palestine Methodist church, will give an interpretation of the work of the youth in the church.

Rev. Ralph C. Strobel, pastor of the New Waterford-Negley churches, will be in charge of the course "How to Administer the Program of the Local Church".

Membership in the school principally is for Sunday school and a young people's society leaders. While it is arranged primarily for Methodists, members of other churches are invited.

PASTOR WILL OCCUPY FORMER PULPIT HERE

Rev. A. H. O'Brien of Kingsville, former pastor of the First Baptist church, will occupy his former pulpit Sunday at 11 a. m.

Rev. O'Brien has been in East Liverpool during the past week holding revival services at the Pleasant Heights mission. He will preach at the mission Sunday at 3:30 and again at 7:30 p. m., and will be assisted by Miss Geraldine Mundy of the Altoona mission. A service for children will be conducted by Miss Mundy at 6:30 p. m.

The revival services at the mission will continue Monday and Tuesday nights next week.

PASTORS WILL HEAR FORMER MISSIONARY

Mrs. Irene Ihde of Paterson, N. J., former missionary in Japan, will be a guest of the East Liverpool Ministerial association Monday at 10 a. m. in the Y.M.C.A.

Mrs. Ihde is a talented pianist and will play several instrumental selections. She also will explain the methods of Christianizing the Japanese.

The speaker at the Monday meeting of the ministers will be Adjt. Jack Webster of the Salvation Army, whose subject will be "What's the Matter With Preachers?"

REVIVAL PAIR TO END CAMPAIGN IN CHAPEL

Rev. Billy Smith and Mrs. Helen Smith, Cambridge evangelists, will conclude a two-weeks series of revival services Sunday in the Glendale chapel near Newell.

The week-end schedule includes a service tonight and morning, afternoon and night services Sunday. The morning service will be a combined Sunday school and worship hour with Mrs. Smith addressing the young people. Rev. Billy Smith will preach at the afternoon and night meetings, Mrs. Smith leading the music.

The services, which opened Nov. 19, have been well attended, including delegations of Nazarene church members from Canonsburg, Pa., Congo, Chester and Newell.

SEMINARIAN TO TALK FOR THANK-OFFERING

Special To The Review.
SALINEVILLE, Nov. 30—Orus Rupe, representative of the Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological seminary, will be the speaker Sunday at thank-offering services in the Salineville and Grant Hill United Presbyterian churches.

The services have been arranged for the Women's Missionary societies and a special offering for missionary work will be collected.

Mr. Rupe will preach in the Salineville church at 11 a. m. and in the Grant Hill church, on the Salineville-Irontone road, at 2:30 p. m. Rev. Harold F. Jensen is the pastor of the two churches.

PASTOR HERE TO LEAD REVIVAL IN WHEELING

Rev. Canfield To Serve For Week-Long Campaign

Rev. Clyde H. Canfield, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will conduct a week's revival campaign beginning Sunday in the First United Presbyterian church of Wheeling.

He will preach Sunday morning and night and every night next week up to and including Friday.

Rev. S. B. Copeland is pastor of the Wheeling church.

Substitute speakers will fill the pulpit of Rev. Canfield's church tomorrow and will direct the mid-week prayer meeting Wednesday night.

Rev. B. H. Pilchard of Columbus, a representative of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league will preach at the 11 a. m. service. Rev. Pilchard spoke in the First Church of the Nazarene last Sunday.

Rev. G. A. Brown, retired United Presbyterian minister, will direct the 7:30 p. m. worship service when he will preach on "What Think Ye of Christ?" Rev. Brown will lead the mid-week prayer service.

DUO WILL SING SUNDAY AT NAZARENE SERVICE

Misses Mazie Freeman and Betty Freeman will give duet numbers at the meeting of the Sunday school tomorrow at 9:45 a. m. in the Wellsville Church of the Nazarene.

—Among New Books— Bible For The Indians Now Out—Compiled By Tom Jefferson Reviewed By John Selby

"THE JEFFERSON BIBLE," by Thomas Jefferson.

The first popular edition of the Bible Thomas Jefferson compiled a century and a quarter ago just has been published in time for the Christmas trade. It has had a curious history.

In the beginning, it is said that Jefferson was anxious to present the story of Jesus in simple form for use in civilizing, and doubtless converting, the Indians. He tried to find someone to make the compilation for him and failed.

Later, when he was no longer President, and when he was happily unconscious that his refusal of a third term was destined to make such a potter in 1940, the old gentleman got down to the job himself.

It was a scissor and paste job. He took eight Bibles, at least, in Greek, two in Latin, two in French and the others the St. James English version. From them he cut what he believed were the indubitable words of the Christ and these he pasted in parallel columns, four columns to each double page. His original contained also the references detailing his sources, chapter and verse.

But it was too late for the Indians, or at any rate Jefferson appears to have made no effort to have his book used among them. Instead, it was kept for his own use; many and many a time he consulted it, and when about to die his fear of criticism was so strong that he asked his heirs to keep it away from the public. This was done for a great many years.

Then a young research student named Cyrus Adler got himself a job cataloging the Hebrew library of Dr. Joshua I. Cohen, in Baltimore. In the course of his labors, Dr. Adler found clues which later led him to the original of the Jefferson Bible, and eventually put that work in the United States National Museum.

So far as this writer knows, only two editions of it have been published since. In 1904 the 57th Congress had a photostatic version prepared and handsomely bound, for distribution to its own members. Later, Dr. Adler published a limited edition.

The words of the Jefferson Bible are immortal, and in the new edition they are even easier to read than in their original form, since the text is paraphrased, and presented otherwise in modern style. In addition, the book is one of the most interesting comments on Jefferson's own mind that has come down to us.

The Day's News in Pictures

CARBURETER CAVALRY—As part of their training, members of the Canadian Women's Service corps are shown receiving instructions from a sergeant major on the operation of a motorcycle. In addition, they are trained in drilling, motor transport, signalling and first aid.

JOHN DOESN'T UNDERSTAND IT—So, while Elaine Barrie, his fourth wife, was obtaining a divorce from him, John Barrymore was scanning the law books in his attorney's office. But when the attorney, Roland Rich Woolley, asked the great profile if he understood the property settlement, the Barrymore rejoinder was, "Lord, no! Do you?"

PRINCELY ONLOOKER—Prince Bernhard, above, son-in-law of Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, is pictured "somewhere in England" during a visit to the Merchant Navy Comforts depot where parcels are packed for Allied seamen. The gift parcels, which include socks, scarfs, mufflers, helmets, sweaters and mittens, are done up in a sailor's roll holding enough for five men.

THIS IS TEXAS!—The picture above was not taken in the northern states which regularly present such scenes every winter, but far down in Amarillo, Tex., which was visited by a snow and sleet storm that wrecked communications and power lines and isolated the city from the outer world.

"AMERICA IN FLOWERS"—Miss Jetsey Posthuma, as "Liberty," is pictured holding this theme chosen for the 1941 Tournament of Roses parade in Pasadena, Cal.

PEACE SPOT IN EUROPE—Although it is surrounded on all sides by belligerents, peace-loving little Switzerland thus far has been able to stay out of the conflict. Here the Aga Khan, famed sportsman and spiritual leader of millions of India's inhabitants, is pictured during a round of golf on a Geneva, Switzerland, course.

GUEST OF THE GENERAL—Jim Fort Rast, 12-year-old Boy Scout of Swansea, S. C., above, rates a salute from Major General Philip B. Peyton's chauffeur as he gets into the general's car to be taken to headquarters of the Eighth division at Columbia, S. C. When young Jim tried to volunteer in the division General Peyton eased the boy's disappointment by inviting him to be a guest at a division inspection. And here he is starting out for his big day.

YOUNG MIKE RAFFA of Newell, promising featherweight contender is slated for one of the feature bouts on the News Xmas boxing show in Cleveland Monday. He takes on Everett Rightmire, New York fighter, in a six-rounder.

Honorary captain. Dick Smith, All-County guard for two years, has been elected captain of the Potter squad for the past season by the players. Although a different squadman was chosen leader for each game in line with Coach Joe Morbitto's new system, he was picked from the lot for the honor.

Yarosz suspended. "Teddy" Yarosz, "Monaca Mauler", and former world middleweight champion, was among 10 boxers suspended by the Pennsylvania State Athletic commission at a meeting in Philadelphia Monday. It was charged he used illegal tactics in his bout with Lloyd Marshall in Pittsburgh a month ago. The three-day season on deer opens in West Virginia Monday. Coach Everett Brinkman, who has piloted the Wheeling High school cage teams to three state titles in five years, will have only one regular back from last year's quint which won 23 of 24 games.

MOUNT UNION CAGE TEAM TAKES FORM; FIRST GAME DEC. 6

Special To The Review. ALLIANCE, O., Nov. 30 — With the Mount Union college cage team facing their first tilt of the season Friday, Dec. 6, Coach Robert D. Sport Chatter

By EDDIE BRIETZ Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 — Only thing that kept today from being a freer around this town was the news that the Dodge deal for Mickey Owen is hotter than ever. . . . You'll all think we're plumb daffy, but California vs. Stanford today is the spot to end all upsets if there ever was one. . . . Joe Boland, the Notre Dame line coach, is one of the big shots being mentioned in those reported mid-western shifts. . . . The Minneapolis papers are giving Tommy Harmon down the country for popping off here that the Michigan team (which lost to Minnesota 7-6) was three touchdowns better than the Gophers.

Figures don't lie.

Says the Times-Tribune, "In three games against Minnesota, Harmon had a net gain of 109 yards while carrying the ball 45 times. . . . That's an average of 2 and 2 tenths yards. . . . Wonder if Tommy made any mention of those figures while taking bows in the Big City?"

From near and far.

George Jessel, the comedian and his eye-filling wife, were at the Fordham football rally last night. . . . At last! The Messrs. Harmon and Grange are going to meet, but only in a battle of wits on Red's Chicago radio program tonight.

Today's guest star.

Wilbur Kenley, Jackson (Miss.) Daily News: "Let's hope football doesn't go in for double features. . . . It might be that some of the rest of those so-called undefeated and untied records might be padded with off-key officiating. . . . The Cornells were doing all right until the dern movies came along."

Beg pardon.

We have a letter signed by 16 members of the Clemson Tigers calling us a sucker for falling for that stuff that was the dissertation in the ranks. . . . O. K., fellows, sorry.

CLARKSON

The third annual meeting of the teachers and board members of the Beaver rural schools was held recently in the school at Rogers, when a chicken dinner was served my women of the Christian church. The business session was conducted by David Hollinsworth, principal of the Calcutta school. F. A. MacGillivray of Greenford and Robert E. Mills of Youngstown gave talks. There will be no December meeting.

The entertainment was presented with Verna Warrick chairman as follows: Selections by a five-piece orchestra; reading, Maynard Fallow; duet, Robert Hadley and Lyle Meek; address, Rep. John P. Stephenson of East Liverpool; musical number, Mr. Hadley, Jay Welch, T. R. Groman, Mr. Hatcher, Mr. Meek and Gordon Crumbacker. Games were directed by Miss Dorothea Thompson.

The next meeting will be Jan. 27 with Emerson Snyder, principal of the Clarkson rural school, chairman.

Ladies' Aid society of the Presbyterian church held an all-day meeting Wednesday in the band hall with Mrs. Carl Conkle and Mrs. Donald Williams associate hostesses. Officers were elected as follows: Mrs. Conkle, president; Mrs. Lena Anderson, vice president; Mrs. Norman Sonders, secretary; Mrs. Alan McGhie, treasurer. Quilting was the pastime and a covish luncheon was served at noon. Guests were Mrs. Thomas Mazy, Mrs. Thomas Mazy Jr., Mrs. Carl Daiger, Mrs. Walter Cope, Misses Mabel Conkle and Janet Cope.

Chairmen and officers of the Clarkson Farmers' institute met Wednesday night at the home of Donald Elliott in Rogers. Final plans were made for the two sessions of the institute Dec. 13 and 14 at the Clarkson Grange hall.

Feller To Hunt In Ohio

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—Bobby Feller, ace pitcher of the Cleveland Indians, expects to be in Sandusky next week for some duck hunting. Feller came to New York to see his fellow Iowan, Lee Savold, fight Billy Conn at Madison Square Garden.

AS LONGHORNS SCORED STUNNING UPSET OVER AGGIES. The highly-touted Texas A. & M. line is pictured as its goal line was crossed by Fullback Pete Layden of the University of Texas for the only touchdown of the game which saw the Aggies go down to their first defeat in 19 games. The startling upset was seen by 45,000 fans who jammed the Longhorns stadium at Austin, Tex. This Texas A. & M. defeat may react on the possibilities of the Aggies meeting the West coast champions in the Rose Bowl.

WATERFORD DEFEATS ALUMNI TEAM, 44-26

Special To The Review.

NEW WATERFORD, Nov. 30 — New Waterford High defeated an Alumni team, 44-26, Friday night in the season opener as Johnny Wolford and Bob Esterly supplied the scoring punch. Wolford registered 12 points, while Esterly came through with 13.

The Warrior regulars used a fast breaking offense the time they were in the game but Coach G.H. Weikart substituted freely after the varsity had rolled up a substantial lead.

Reserve Rated Inside Track For Sun Bowl Contest With Arizona

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30—A trip south to play in the Sun Bowl game appeared certain today for Western Reserve university's football team.

As Sun Bowl officials planned to meet tomorrow, the Red Cats were given the "inside track" as the team to meet Arizona State Teachers' college of Tempe in the inter-sectional competition at El Paso, Tex., New Year's day.

Coach Millard (Dixie) Howell of the Border conference was represented as favoring San Jose State college of California for the Arizona team's opponents, but the Sun Bowl committee was expected to seek a more distant rival.

Western Reserve's athletic board yesterday sanctioned the 2,000-mile holiday trip, Athletic Director Karl Davis announced. If selected, the Red Cats probably would leave Cleveland Dec. 28, arrive in El Paso in time for one day's practice and return by Jan. 6 without missing classes.

GODOY WANTS THIRD MEETING WITH LOUIS

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30—You'd think that two fights with Joe Louis would be enough.

But not for Arturo Godoy, who was knocked in 15 rounds and later kayoed in eight by the Brown Bomber.

Godoy breezed through a streamlined workout today in preparation for his fight here Monday with Tony Musto of Chicago, and then opened his future book.

"Sure I want to fight Louis again and I'll beat him, too," Arturo said with gestures. "An eye cut stopped me in that last bout with him. He's slipping and I'm coming back fast.

"Right now I'm in the best shape of my career. Weigh about 202. I beat Gus Dorazio in October and the victory over Musto will put me that much closer to a title shot. I figure to knock out Musto. Maybe not, but I'll win."

RAMS, PACKERS MEET IN SEASON NIGHTCAP

Special To The Review.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30 — The Cleveland Rams play their final game of the season with the champion Green Bay Packers in Municipal stadium Sunday. The Rams can put Green Bay out of the title chase with an upset victory, but to do this they must stop the Packers' great Don Hutson.

The game may develop into an individual race for the scoring leadership of the league. Hutson and Johnnie Drake, of the Rams, are tied at 50 points each.

Coach Dutch Clark has had his Rams working hard all week on pass defense against Green Bay plays, with emphasis on Don Hutson. The Packers play this last game of the season needing a victory coupled with a Bear loss at the hands of the Cards to gain a tie for the western division title.

The Rams are out to win this one more than any other this season, for it was up at Green Bay early in October that the Rams took an unwarranted beating at the hands of the Packers, 31-14. In the Rams game with the Packers last season it took a last minute touchdown pass, Isbell to Laws to beat Cleveland.

CADETS' HOPES HINGE ON MAZUR IN TUSSLE WITH ANNAPOLIS CREW

Annual Grudge Battle Looms As Game Where Decided Underdog Rates Chance Of Pulling Victory; Star Rusik May Spark Navy Attack

By BILL BONI Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30—To look at him you'd say he was a boy being asked to do man's work. Yet supporters of the underdog Army football team felt confident that 20-year-old Hank Mazur would give a good account of himself as today he toiled their hopes for an upset victory over Navy on his slim shoulders.

Mazur has been one of the few bright spots in an otherwise sombre Cadet football picture. Injuries kept him out of action until the Harvard game, but he ran 40 yards for the touchdown that brought a tie with the Crimson (the only major game Army didn't lose), he was the outstanding back on the field in the 7-0 loss to Notre Dame, and the lad who threw a four-alarm scare into Princeton a week ago before the Tigers won by 26-19.

Given a dry day — the weather man at last report was saying "cloudy and colder"—Army can be expected to rely heavily on passing. Against a bigger Navy line (two bigger Navy lines, in fact, since the Middles operate on the two-unit system) the Cadets can't figure on making much headway running. So most of the Army maneuvers are likely to develop into passes by Quarterback Johnny Hatch of Fort Sill, Okla., to Mazur and, just for variety, from Mazur to the Army ends.

While Navy Coach Swede Larson openly fears Mazur on either side, that does not mean he is without ball-carrying and passing operatives of his own. Chief of these, and one of the main reasons the middies were favored as high as 1-3, is Bill Rusik of Pasadena, Calif., another sophomore.

Though emergency duty forced numerous men in both branches of the service to turn back their tickets, there was little cause for belief there would be any vacant spaces in the huge Municipal stadium, which would mean another 102,000 full house.

Coach Tom Pierce, who is serving his second year as cage mentor, stands an excellent chance of whipping a winning combine together for the opening game Dec. 17. This season's schedule which consists of 16 games, is comparatively tougher than those of previous years with Dartmouth, Weirton, Follansbee and Salineville, new opponents slated to offer plenty of competition.

Coach Pierce still has two open dates on the schedule and would like to book contests with district teams.

Complete schedule:

- Dec. 17—Alumini, home.
- Dec. 20—Dartmouth, away.
- Jan. 3—Open.
- Jan. 7—New Waterford, home.
- Jan. 10—Chester, home.
- Jan. 14—New Cumberland, away.
- Jan. 17—Salineville, home.
- Jan. 21—Damascus, home.
- Jan. 24—New Waterford, away.
- Jan. 31—West Liberty, away.
- Feb. 4—New Cumberland, away.
- Feb. 7—Open.
- Feb. 11—Weirton, home.
- Feb. 14—Follansbee, away.
- Feb. 18—Bethany, home.
- Feb. 21—Chester, away.
- Feb. 28—West Liberty, home.

Eight Veterans Back For Kent Basketball

Special To The Review. KENT, O., Nov. 30—As only two weeks remain until Kent State university's opening cage game of the season, Coach G. D. "Rosy" Starn is drilling his charges daily as he seeks to build a workable unit for the coming campaign.

The Golden Flashes open their regular season here Dec. 9 against Alderson-Broadus college of Philippi, W. Va. but will put on a preview here Dec. 4 against the alumni.

Eight veterans, four of whom were regulars last season, form the nucleus for the coming combine. The lettermen include Joe Price, Sharon, Pa.; Dan Guiglin, Ladrange, Mo.; Max Connor, Smithfield; Harold Anderson, Kent; Bill Bollantz, Mansfield; Mike Feduniak, Akron; Dick Kilbourne, Kent, and Joe LeChaux, Cleveland.

Twenty-two games, 11 against Ohio conference foes, are on the 1940-41 schedule.

P-T A. WILL MAP PLANS FOR WINTER PROGRAM

The Grant st. Parent-Teachers association will meet Tuesday night at 7:30 to discuss plans for winter activities. Another roller skating party will be held Friday in the Winland building.

The following program will be presented Tuesday: Group singing of Christmas carols; greeting by Mary Jean Leahy; speech, "A Boy's Christmas Wish," William Plant; song, "Jolly, Jolly Santa Claus," first and second grades; recitation, "The Christmas Letter," first grade; speech, "A Merry Christmas," Patsy Copenhaver and Helen Rose McDonald; dramatization, "Little Red Shoes," fourth grade, and "March of the Wooden Soldiers" by third grade rhythm band.

Men-Over-Forty Club Meets With Success In Job Finding

By International News Service. CHICAGO, Nov. 30—The Chicago Men-Over-Forty club, working on the principle that America has a wealth of brain power unadjusted and unharnessed, is proving its point and finding jobs for its members.

The club, organized 17 months ago, claims that many trained men over 40 years of age have experience and technical knowledge needed in American business life, but that younger men are crowding them into unemployment.

The club concentrates on men with training in executive, technical and managerial work.

In 17 months the club has placed 121 men over 40 in well-paying jobs, and President W. E. Renolds claims that 6,000 employers have been shown the value of employing experienced men.

Said Renolds: "In placing men of this type, many of whom are capable of correcting 'weak spots' in sales departments and in factory production, we believe that we can do as much for business as business can do for us."

He asserted the idea that men of 40 are set in their ways, unable to learn, is being dissipated, saying: "One of the encouraging discoveries of the work of the club is that men over 40 are adaptable. At least half of the men we have placed have gone into fields foreign to their previous experience. It has been shown that our men can find themselves in new lines of work."

We believe that the only people who can solve the nation's unemployment problem are the businessmen. It is up to them, whether owners of corner stores or heads

Who Killed Aunt Maggie?

By MEDORA FIELD

YESTERDAY: Sally's week-end party at her and Bill's country place is already in a tangle. Sally has had a threatening letter, Aunt Maggie and Eve have crashed the party and somebody has been giving the servants faked orders. Everybody is trying to ignore the fact that Bob and Claire are the guests of honor and that Eve is the simoniac beauty who tried for Bob, and failed.

CHAPTER FIVE Bent On Trouble

OUR other guests were already in the library and Andrew was passing fresh mint juleps when we got down. A few moments later Aunt Maggie made one of her entrances, stately in black lace. Just behind her was Eve, wearing a dinner dress of heavy red satin that did almost too much for her figure. I knew she had worn it with Claire's red-gold hair in mind. But Claire, in green velvet, must have smiled to herself if she shared my thought. I was not surprised a little later when I found Bob in the dining room, pouring himself a stiff, straight drink from one of the old Waterford decanters. "I'm so happy about you and Claire," I told him.

"Thanks, Sally," he said, tossing off his drink and pouring himself another without even a pause between. "You know how I've always felt about Claire's money. Nearly always in debt, too. But I'm getting cleared. I'm getting a little revenue from an old investment. Oh, well, I don't need to be talking like this to you."

"Of course not," I agreed, and suddenly I knew that it was Claire who had managed this new solvency to pave the way for her engagement. Ever so cleverly, ever so indirectly, no doubt, so Bob would never in the world suspect. But, knowing Claire, I was sure. I recognized her fine Italian hand back of it all. I wondered why she had not thought of it before.

"I'm sorry Eve had to invite herself out here," I apologized. "Hadin' seen her since she got back to town," he said, waving a little as he stood. "However, I shouldn't have got myself into such a mess. Seems to be one of the best things I could do."

"It's because you are too kind to children and dumb animals," I told him. But I knew well enough how difficult it was for him to avoid complications. Ordinarily he was so full of nonchalance and sparkle of such gay exuberance that your own mood lifted merely in anticipation of his approach.

He was, in short, what Aunt Maggie called "good company." She often said such people should be endowed by their less attractive friends or by the government or somebody, because they did so much to lighten the lump of humanity in general. No doubt, she would have approved of Claire's inspiration.

Bob's Weakness. With a whimsical smile at me, he still held in his hand. Bob said, "Well, I'm going to turn over a new leaf. Going to settle down. Going to be serious."

"Heaven forbid," I told him. "There are enough dull people in the world as it is."

"Let's have a drink on it," he suggested. I smiled and shook my head, uncomfortable in the contradictory role of hostess and interested friend who feels that she should raise a restraining hand. We all knew Bob drank a little too much times, but usually he carried his liquor as he did his troubles, with such casual grace that they both rather added to his attractiveness.

"Well, don't let it bother you about Eve," he said, as he downed his drink. "If any of you could look ahead and see what is likely to happen."

Instead of finishing his observation, he refilled his glass once more and lifted it to me in a little gesture which might have been a toast or a farewell to bachelor freedom or almost anything gay and gallant, but which I suppose only meant that he was getting a bit too tight to round out his sentences.

Anyway, it was plain enough that dinner must be served at once. It would never do to have Bob pass out at his own engagement party. Eve would enjoy that far too much.

But I had hardly begun ladling tomato bisque from the lovely old Spode tureen before Eve was off again, trouble bent. I had sat down at the table feeling a natural pride in the beauty of its appointments. The shining surface of old mahogany, highlighted by the flame of waxen white tapers in Sheffield candleabra—the dramatic combination of blood-red and snow-white flowers—her loom china and silver.

The dependable excellence of the food about to be set before us, Champagne for celebration. I remembered that all this should be needlessly spoiled, not to mention the discomfort to my guests.

Eve Goes To Work. In the most dulcet of tones, as though intent upon dispensing sweetness and light for all, Eve had asked, "Been out to the Cavalier club lately, Bob? Your luck must be picking up if you are able to undertake matrimony."

Bob flushed as he answered briefly, "No, haven't been out lately. Although Claire went on talking in a low tone to Kirk as though she had not heard, Alice turned a look of open hatred upon Eve, and you had the feeling that everyone at the table was really listening for what Eve would say next. We all knew she and Bob had spent too much time together at the Cavalier club shortly after Eve's divorce and that while she had won steadily Bob had lost even more steadily—sums which grew more and more spectacular, all things considered.

We did not have long to wait.

"If any of us could look ahead," said Bob.

"How's Big Shot?" Eve asked. "Still being a big shot?" "Who's Big Shot?" Aunt Maggie wanted to know, and we all laughed because the words sounded so funny when she said them, quite aside from providing a welcome relief from strain. "Big Shot Anderson," Eve explained. "He runs the Cavalier club, high-class gambling joint. Oh, yes, strictly illegal. But that's nothing for Big Shot. He used to be a bootleg king. They say he is at the bottom of the top of the numbers racket now. The bug, you know. Or would you? That's Big Shot. Nice person. Nobody you would know."

"But I did know some Andersons," said Aunt Maggie, and we all smiled again. "They came to Georgia from North Carolina and
